

This Comic was published by John Darkow, from the Columbia Daily Tribune, on 9/4/2014

The comic shows a man who is clearly sick and flying into the country and he is going to infect the entire plane and no one wants to get near him.

We need to pay attention to diseases that come into our country and we also need to pay attention to ourselves and our own personal hygiene.

The tone is slightly humorous but is also really serious at the same time.

This appeals to ethos, you must pay attention to yourself because you might be hurting the others around you.

The publisher is Adam Zyglis, from The Buffalo News, on 9/5/2014

This portrays popular internet websites and services that are trying to steal someones personal data from their computer.

The tone is serious because protecting your digital fingerprint is so important in todays growing technological economy that identity stealing is lot easier if you're not careful.

This appeals to pathos because you need to protect yourself and if you don't it could ruin your whole life and your families.